Julia, war has been ongoing there since 2014 already, and it's not Putin who started it, be sure...you are not seeing a lot of facts / stories which you should be aware of in order to make an informed opinion. The media have not been highlighting at all how many people died in Donbass during these last 8 years, about the terror of Ukrainian nationalists. Just a few examples: burning people alive in Odessa in May 2014 in the local parliament building, building a dam in Herson oblast in order to cut off Crimea from drinking water, introducing a law on "The title nations of Ukraine" in which they separate people on "pure blood Ukrainians" / "not pure blood", the status of "mixed blood" is not clear..doesn't this ring a bell to you how this kind of ideology is called? I believe you as a German remember the history and some of its darker pages..

Bill Sefton CPA you are right, what this man "did" to his country no one did since world war 2, since there are not so many examples of such enemies to their own country and people. You have no idea what this man is, most importantly what he should have done and what he actually didn't do. Also ridiculous to read those comments him not leaving his country with a jet full of cash, while he is reportedly not even inside Ukraine, but instead in Poland and makes his "patriotic declarations" from that place, but not from his president's office

Zelensky is not free to act - he only does what he is told to do..He performed zero of his promises to the Ukrainian people before being elected. He was supposed to only stop war in Donbass as a bottom line by getting in touch with Lugansk and Donetsk republics and have a clear and direct dialogue with them. This never happened regardless Minsk agreements and the Normand format which was supported by Russia, Germany and France. So even his basic duties under these agreements he never fulfilled. So what kind of hero is he then? He was watching and doing nothing while the people of Donbass were dying, by the way he kept mentioning in the meantime that those were still Ukrainian territories..Considering those territories Ukrainian he nevertheless cut them from Ukraine, as one of the examples - senior people were not getting their retirement. Someone who says he cares, should act consistently and do practical moves in that direction. With Zelensky it's all talking and a "show". Now he got stuck between the pressure from Putin's side and those inside his country. The West dumped him already because none of them would fight with Russia because of Ukraine. So there are already discussions he would be running from the country soon

Против России сейчас весь мир, никто не хочет работать с русскими компаниями. Русским будут аннулируют визы и высылать обратно в РФ. В Германии снимают номера на русских машинах и режут шины. Это только начало. Это выбор каждого.

Stefan Nolte , just one question - has anyone ever tried to boycott U.S. or any European country supporting U.S. in its bombings of Lybia or Syria or maybe Iraq or Afganistan? Maybe for Yugoslavia? Do you not realize that any war is made in the first place because of purely economic reasons, it's always about redistributing wealth and reallocating resources. First we had the scenario "pandemic", now we have scenario "war". War is quite normal after pandemic following which most of the budgets got really thin with all those lockdowns..Making business is our way to overcome the current difficulties and we should focus on opportunities rather than discriminating one single nation just because and just for the sake of harming it. Economic sense and common sense must prevail over the hypocrisy and the hysteria that is happening at this moment

The stupidity of those who did it is incredible if it's true
