A Russian Putinist who openly supports the war in Ukraine has taken a job in the Italian Senate.
Irina Osipova, 35, daughter of the former head of the Rosstruduchestvo office in Italy and head of the Russian House in Rome, will start working in the Senate on November 1. The parliament itself assures that she has passed a fair and long competition for the supposedly purely technical position of assistant, but Osipova will still have access to important (and even classified) information, including politicians' correspondence.
